1. The Rehns have a country garden with large live oak trees giving it the flavor of gracious country living, They are major players in the daylily society and also the orchid society and have in more recent years developed a love for ferns.

2. This perennial garden represents Ruth and Lloyd’s years of loving care with introductions of her newfound interest in ferns.
Her garden is a reflection of her love of plants.

3. Jackie’s home sits on a very large lot bordering the woods and is often described as a park. Her garden has evolved over a 35 year period into a very large collection of plants with ferns playing a large part.
